WHAT: In an effort to discuss the concepts put forth in Neale Donald Walsch's best-selling Conversations with God (CWG) book series on a local level, these study groups meet weekly in an open forum to explore, challenge and discuss ideas surrounding God, life and spirituality. In addition to discussing why the series has appealed to so many people around the world, the study group also aims to discuss hundreds of compelling questions including:

- ❑ Should we be afraid of God?
- ❑ What is God's greatest gift to mankind?
- ❑ What happens after we die?

WHY: Neale Donald Walsch and his best-selling CWG book series has created a global buzz. With over 5 million copies sold, the series has ignited an uncommon dialogue about God and life on a global level. In order to honor and support the effort and energy of every individual exploring life questions or challenges, CWG study groups aim to assist those interested in finding others who share their particular passion. With no fees or requirements, the study groups serve solely as a forum to share CWG ideas with fellow humans. Translated into 27 languages, there are currently over 300 study groups worldwide.
